NIGHT DISPATHES.

REVOLVER ONCE MORE---END OF A STRIKE.

Shaffer Beats Slasson---From Memphis---Corbin at the Head--- A Georgia Vindetta.

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—A special dispatch from Courtland, Alabama, says: Last May John T. Hawkins shot and killed S. F. Drake. To-day (Friday) J. H. Drake, a brother of the deceased, met Hawkins and commenced firing upon him, and closing in with Hawkins threw him to the ground. The city marshal ran up and attempted to pull off Drake, who was beating Hawkins over the head with his pistol. Throwing the marshal off, Drake then placed the pistol to Hawkins' head and fired again, blowing out his brains. The grand jury had failed to find an indictment against Hawkins, and this so incensed Drake that he fired on Hawkins at sight. Drake has made his escape.

Fever Notes.

MEMPHIS, Oct. 25.—Another heavy frost fell lost night, and a thin coating of ice was formed on pools of water in the suburbs. The thermometer, placed by a signal service officer on the ground as a test, marked thirty-two and a half degrees at 4 o'clock this morning.

The steamer Hardcosh, from St. Louis, arrived this morning at 9 o'clock, being the first boat to land at the wharf since July 24th.

The weather is clear and cool.

The following telegram was sent this morning to Hon. A. S. Marks, Governor, at Nashville:

The epidemic is declared ended this day, and the camps will be broken up on Monday. I thank your Excellency on behalf of the people of Memphis for material assistance rendered and for further aid promised if necessary. We have sufficient funds to carry us through, and will not be compelled to draw on you for any more.

(Signed) D. T. PORTER, President.

There are a few cases of yellow fever yet in the city and a few esses may yet develop, but by ordinary prudence there is no danger of the disease now spreading from that source. By order of the Board of Health, J. Chandler, M. D. Secretary.

Sailsbury's non-Indorsement.

MANCHESTER, October 25.—At a liberal demonstration yesterday, the Marquis of Hartington sharply attacted Lord Salisbury in a recent speech. He said the policy indicated in Salisbury's circular had not been carried out, and Russia had been confirmed in all conquests she made in the treaty of Santefana. Discussing the reforms in Turkey, he characterized Salisbury's defence of the assertion that England had frequently spent blood and treasure in defence of bad governments as imoral policy he declared the government of Afghan policy would end in the annexation.

Who Blew Up Corbin's Hotel?

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 23.—The preliminary hearing in the case of H. C. Corbin, arrested on a charge of blowing up his hotel and saloon in Westville, this county, about a month ago, was held yesterday. This morning Mayor Alexander decided that Corbin was not guilty. The trial was of much interest to the community, and was largely attended. The crime was charged to some temperance people at the time of occurrence.

Found Dead in the Road.

PORT JERVIS, Oct. 23.—Mrs. Charity Acker and Mrs. Mary Caldwell were found, about 11 o'clock last evening, dead in the road, six miles west of Wurtsboro. The wagon in which they had been riding was upset, and the men were attracted to the place by the groaning of the horse, which was tangled in the harness. The women started in the forenoon from Wurtsboro to visit Mrs. Caldwell's husband, who is in jail in Monticello. They bought a bottle of whisky, and when last seen alive were intoxicated.

The Man who was Pardoned by Grant.

CHICAGO, Oct, 23.—It is reported here that General McDonald, famous during the whiskey ring trials of the last administration, and then the warm friend President Grant, was married to-day to the "Sylph" of the despatches, the discovery of which did much to secure the conviction of McDonald, McKee, Avery, and the rest.

It is understood that this woman helped General McDonald liberally with money during his trial, and after his release from jail, she went with him to his home in Wisconsin. There were quarrels with Mrs. McDonald, and much scandal resulted. Several civil suits concerning the property, ended in a divorce. Her name was Mrs. Lamothe, and the ceremony was performed by Judge Milland, at Berlin, Wisconsin.

THE BOAT RACE FIZZLE.

Hanlan Accepts the Proposition for A New Contest.

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 23.—Edward Hanlan sent the following letter in reply to the referee Blaikie's communication yesterday:

TORONTO, Oct. 23.

Wm. Blaikie, Esq., Post Building, New York:

DEAR SIR: In reply to your letter of the 21st instant, I have to state in the first place, that I wish it distinctly understood that anything contained in this letter shall not in any way prejudice my claim, legal or moral, to the purse of $6,000, which I consider I have fairly won, and which according to the best legal authorities in Canada and your own ruling is mine already, both in equity and law. With this understanding I am willing to admit, in case Mr. Courtney can be induced to row me for the purse, as indicated in your letter, it would be easier for me and more to my taste to win what was already due me on water rather than in a court of law. In case a race should be arranged, however, I should insist that the money be placed, not merely subject to your order, but in your hands to be handed by you to the winner when in your opinion he won the race. If I enter into such arrangement it will be for the purpose of avoiding annoyance and the delay of a law suit, and no loophole shall be left through which any person or persons can creep for the purpose of giving me trouble in the collection of my winnings. To this end I would suggest that the race may be play or pay, in every respect subject only to the condition of the wafer. I do not believe Mr. Courtney wished to enter into a fair and square contest with me, and I have no wishes, if I take time and trouble to get ready for a race, to be deprived of my earnings, either by fraud or cowardice. I am of the opinion if this contest be made subject to the condition of Mr. Courtney's coming out upon the water and rowing me a fair race, it will never come off; but if the money be placed in your hands for play or pay race upon a certain date, or the first day thereafter when smooth water can be had, I think I can do with less trouble in that way than through a law suit. Let the race be play or pay, and if anybody cuts my boats Mr. Courtney can have the money.

Yours, truly,

EDWARD HANLAN.

P. S.—I take this means of vindicating myself and friends, and of showing the world I am now, and have been all along, anxious to prove which is the better sculler of the two. The proposal I here make will remain open until Monday next. The race to be rowed not later than ten days afterward, over the same course.

THE LATE FLOOD.

The Tennessee River—Waterspouts Sweeping Everything as they go.

Franklin Reporter.

We have just had one of the biggest freshets ever known in this country. It commenced raining last Thursday, but rained very little that day. Friday it rained steadily all day, and at sunset the Tennessee river was out of its banks in some low places. But by daylight Saturday nearly all the river bottoms were covered with water, and in some places the river was half a mile wide. The water was up in the bridge across the Tennessee river at this place, and it was feared that it would be washed away, but it stood the freshet uninjured. A great deal of corn that had been gathered was washed away, and a great deal of the corn that was standing and covered with water will probably spoil, owing to the continued damp and rainy weather. The loss in fencing was very great, as was also that of hay, oats, fodder and straw that was stacked in the bottoms. It is impossible to estimate the damage done along the river.

Mr. W. T. Reid, of Walhalla, S. C., informf us that two waterspouts fell—one near the head of the Tennessee river, not far from Mr. Scruggs', and another lower down, near the house of Mr. John McDowell, Jr. He speaks of them as being very terrific, taking very large rocks and trees down the mountain sides as they went, and in some places making paths in the earth four feet deep and fifty feet wide. We are glad to learn that no lives were lost by the waterspouts, and no property destroyed save the crops that were gathered. The water spouts account for the rapid rise in the river last Friday night. Old citizens here say they never knew the river to rise or fall so fast. Sunday even the tallest man could walk where, less than twenty-four hours before, the water would have been over his head.

We learn from the family of Mr. Samuel Phillips, who lives about a mile up the river, and who keeps account of the heights of all the freshets, that this is the highest the Tennessee river has ever been since 1840, at which time it was 5 inches higher than this freshet. We made a measurement yesterday at the bridge, and found that the river had been 16 feet and 4 inches above low water mark. We are indebted to the above parties for the following figures, which will show the comparative height of the river at the time of the different big rises in it. In May, 1840, the water is Mr. Phillips' front room was 4 feet, 4 inches deep; in March, 1875, it was 22 inches; June, 1876, 25 inches; and on Saturday morning, October the 18th, 1879, it was 3 feet, 11 inches. At 1 o'clock Saturday a. m. the waters were at their highest. S.C. Phillips had to move his family to the second story of his house. He has always refused to be run out by water, stating that he came there first, and intended to remain. At the time of the freshet of 1840, referred to above, the Indians stated that the river was higher than it had been for over a hundred years before.

$1.50 and a Plug of Tobacco.

Salisbury Watchman.

Mr. C. W. Pool's residence was feloniously entered this morning just before day, and his pants and hat stolen. He saw the person standing at his bureau in his sleeping room, but thought it was his wife and paid no attention. After the person went out of the room, and failed to return within a reasonable time, he roused to the possibility that he might be mistaken, and discovered the true situation. He found his pants in the yard, minus $1.50 and a plug of tobacco abstracted from the pockets.

Abolishing Slavery in Cuba.

MADRID, October 23.—A bill for the abolition of slavery in Cuba, to be presented to the Cortes, provides that slaves aged fifty-five years and over shall become free immediately; those aged fifty in September, 1880; those aged forty-five in 1882; those aged forty in 1884; those aged thirty-five in 1886; those aged thirty in 1888; and all others in 1890. From 1880 one hundred thousand piastres will be charged on the Cuba budget for defraying the expenses of emancipation. The sum of three hundred and fifty piastres will be paid to the owners for each slave. The government will as much as possible favor the immigration of free laborers.

THE NINETY-EIGHTH.

CELEBRATION OF THE SURRENDER OF CORNWALLIS.

Brilliant Assemblage of Civilians and Military at the Ninety-Eighth Anniversary--Addresses, etc.

Baltimore Sun, 24th.

YORKTOWN, Va., Oct. 23.—The ninety-eighth anniversary of the surrender of Lord Cornwallis was appropriately celebrated here to-day, the occasion being preliminary to the contemplated centennial celebration in 1881. The weather was pleasant and the attendance of military and civilians large, brilliant and enthusiastic. Many of the most distinguished citizens were present from different sections of the country, and the army and navy and the volunteer military organizations from neighboring cities lent their aid to the display. The occasion passed off most agreeably, nothing occurring to detract from its interest.

HISTORY REVIEWED.

The centennial of the nation's independence in 1876 had the effect of bringing to the minds of the American people many events in their early history which might otherwise have been covered with the dust and the cobwebs of forgetfulness. The result has been that each succeeding year since then, and sometimes twice in the same year, some old struggle for freedom has been commemorated with a burst of enthusiasm, and the recollection of the glory of the past has stirred into fresh life the patriotism that seemed as if it was about to be crushed by the present matter-of-fact day and generation.

Strangely enough the great deeds which gild the history both of our own and other nations had their birth place in mean and insignificant spots, just as some great crisis in the life of a people has raised some poor peasant or hardy mountaineer to the dignity of a hero or a saviour. So localities which might not otherwise have been heard of seem, when the grievances of the two nations are submitted to the arbitrament of war, to raise into importance and stand out forever afterwards as the places where the destiny of either one or the other was decided, or where at least there came the determining point in the struggle. Marston Moore, Culloden, Waterloe, Sedan and Appomattox might have figured no more in history than would some village or hamlet, were it not that near them the great questions with which the hour was pregnant were solved, and the throbs of hope which pulsed through the hearts of opposing forces found in the one case their realization, and in the other gave place to disappointment and sadness. Such a place is Yorktown; without any outer show to reccommit to notice, no healing springs to attract the dyspeptic, no broad drives to allure the gay butterflies of society, and yet a place where it may be said that the question as to wether or not America should become independent was forever settled.

Yorktown, or rather the one street which forms the town, overlooks the York river, so wide and deep that the navy of an empire could safely ride at anchor in it, "Far from the mad'ning crowd's ignoble strife," its few inhabitants live a sequestered life, knowing but little of the outside world save from their newspaper, and contented with the quiet which broods arouud them. Behind the town rise hillocks of redan and moat. The few old buildings dotted around still show their colonial origin. Governor Nelson's residence stands in its quaint simplicity, with oaken carvings and open fireplaces, as also do the customs office from which New Amsterdam (New York) received its importations, and the building in which the articles of capitulation were arranged by Washington and Cornwallis.

THE PREPARATIONS.

On Monday last a detachment of the North Atlantic squadron, which had been lying in Hampton Roads, steamed up the river and anchored opposite the town. The ships were the Powhatan, flagship of the commander in chief, Robert H. Wyman, rear admiral, D. B. Harmong, captain; Portsmouth, Lieutenant-Commander A. S. Croringshield; Saratoga, Commhnder R. D. Evans; Kearsage, (famous for her fight with the Alabama,) Com. H. F. Picking; Marion, Com. F. M. Bunce. The arrival of the fleet caused much excitement, and the presence in the town of smart-looking midshipmen and dashing lieutenants was food for social gossip.

Preparations were at once begun by the citizens for the event of to-day. Right under the shadow of one of Cornwall's forts a stand for the speakers and invited guests was erected. Yesterday the court-house was decorated with banners. Flags were displayed from poles and from the roofs of houses and even the colored people whitewashed their little cabins, while wondering piccaninies stood around astonished at the transformation. The rain which fell on Tuesday and continued through part of the following day it was feared would keep away many visitors; but yesterday afternoon it ceased, and the hopes of the citizens rose with the barometer.

THE CELEBRATION.

At 12 o'clock to-day there was a national salute fired from the flagship Powhatan, and a few minutes later Mr. Clyde's steamer yacht Ocean Gem steamed up to the wharf, having on board Gov. Holliday and staff, of Virginia, Adjutant-General Latta, of Pennsylvania, Hon. W. L. Cincoln, of Massachusetts, Gen. Cameron, of Connecticut, and others. By this time the visiting military had arrived and were formed in line to receive his Excellency. There present five companies of artillery from Fort Monroe, under command of Gen. Getty, and accompanied oy the post band; a battallion of marines and three companies from the North Atlantic squadron; the Old Dominion Guards, of Portsmouth; the Norfolk Light Artillery Blues, and Norfolk City Guards; Richmond Light Artillery Blues, and Company C, First Virginia Regiment, of Richmond; the Wise Light Infantry, of Williamsburg; the Peninsular Guard, of Hampton, and the Webster Guards (youths) of the Webster Institute, of Norfolk. Upon landing the Governor was met by Dr. Power, president of the centennial committee, and presented to Admiral Wyman, Gen. Getty and the officers present.

The line of march was then taken up for the speaker's stand, which had been erected in a vacant field near the village and was near the village and was beautifully decorated with flags and flowers. The stand was occupied by the Governor and the distinguished visitors. The troops were marched in front of the stand, while the visitors to the numer of five or six thousand gathered about, to hear the address. After an appropriate prayer by Rev. Dr. O. E. Herrick, post chaplain, United States Army, Dr. Powers delivered a short address of welcome, in which he briefly referred to the object of the celebration, and then introduced Governor Holliday, of Virginia, who welcomed the military, etc, in a few appropriate remarks.

ADDRESS OF GOV. HOLLIDAY.

Governor Holliday, after welcoming in the name of Virginia all those present, from whatever part of the Republic, spoke of the battle now celebrated as one not of temporary importance, but affecting the destinies of a great people for all time. While consummate military skill and genius were displayed, in comparison there was not much loss of life. There was not much property destroyed or surrendered to the victor, but it closed the long war of the revolution, emancipated thirteen Colonies from their bond to the British empire, and inaugurated a power which now, after the lapse of a century, though grown into one of the most gigantic of nations, has scarcely begun to make its full impress upon the world's destiny. It is becoming and right that we should honor this important event and celebrate its annual return. It is more so that we should make provision for its centennial anniversary. This is Virginia's day, and she has invited her sister States and the Federal authorities to be her guests. Two years hence all of the States will be hosts on this spot as a common heritage, with France, their great ally, and will invite the world to witness how they value the virtue and the valor of the men who won the victory, and how they appreciate its wonderful results. The resources of our nation are boundless. Now at the head in material development, it has reached that period in its growth when it is ready to begin its contest for supremacy in science, art and literature. But above all other blessings that a people can have it holds fast to the traditions of a glorious ancestry, men who laid in the noblest virtues the broad and deep foundation of the constitutional freedom we enjoy. May their genius survive to the remotest generation, making us a high-minded, brave and honest people, guarding us against internal distraction. I bid you welcome to a view of the future, and we may have the faith and strength to fulfill its vast promises.

Gen. Taliaferro, the orator of the day, was next introduced. He paid a high tribute to the courage and heroism of the Continental army and to the noble conduct of the gallant officers and soldiers of the French allies.

At the conclusion of the address, Captain James Barron Hope, of Norfolk, was introduced, and delivered a carefully prepared and able address, lasting an hour.

Colonel Staples, of North Carolina, represented that State. He claimed that she had the honor of issuing the first Declaration of Independence, and that the first white female ever born in America had the honor of being born on her soil, and that if that they did not capture Lord Cornwallis they gave him all the tar they could while he was within her borders.

Prof. Chartier, representing the French government in New York, was next introduced. He said that ninety-eight years ago, when the French soldiers were on this spot, he did not know whether they spoke good English, but he was satisfied that they did good fighting. [Cheers.] At that time this country had some three million inhabitants, and now she has over forty million, and has far outstripped France itself, but if they had had a Republican government and a man like George Washington at its head, things might have been different. He hoped that in 1881, when the citizens and soldiers of the Republic had assembled here for the centennial celebration, that the college would be resuscitated. He hoped that France, through the Governor of the State and the President of the United States, would be invited to participate in that celebration, and that the two sister Republics will go hand in hand together until the governments of Europe shall join them in one grand Republic.

At the conclusion of the address, which was warmly applanded, the band of the Powhatan played the Marseillaise.

Major Beamish, of Her Majesty service, who has been in the country for four months traveling, was then introduced and made an amusing address. He did not wish to rob them of their honors, which had been fairly won, as both British and Americans win them—at the point of the bayonet. [Cheers.] He hoped that the British and American bayoents would never be crossed in strife, but combined together against a common foe. He had met nothing but the greatest kindness and hospitality in his sojourn here, and had found from personal experience that his former impressions of the country had unpergone a radical change.

PROPOSED MONUMENT.

A series of resolutions was then offered, asking Hon. John Goode, our Representative, to urge upon Congress to have a monument erected on the site of the surrender, to commemorate the event, which was adopted. Dr. Power then invited the military and invited guests to participate in a barbecue, which was served on the lawn in front of the old Nelson House which was greatly enjoyed.

LATE STATE NOTES.

Franklin Reporter.

The fence law is the greatest peacemaker known, as it prevents a thousand and one squabbles that arise over stock breaking in our neighbors' fields.

Mr. H. M. Joyce killed a sea-fowl of the genus Larus, on the pond in rear of his store last Saturday. The bird is known in some sections as the sea gull, and other places as the sea crow.

Protracted meeting closed on Monday night, after ten souls had been converted, and thirteen additions to the M. E. Church.

Our well known aged friend, Mr. Ben. Banner, died near Germanton on the 12th, aged ninety-two years.

Mrs. Jane Bostic passed from earth into eternity, near Germanton, on the 12th, at the green old age of seventy-seven years.

Winston Republican.

The great driving wheel for the machinery of the Bethania Woolen Mills, passed through here some days ago. The wheel is over forty feet in circumference and will carry a band about fourteen inches wide. It is cast in two sections, and will be bolted together.

The citizens of Scotch-Irish township have obtained an injunction from Judge Buxton, to restrain the County Commissioners of Rowan from issuing bonds to aid in the construction of the Winston & Mooresville Railroad, on the ground that a legal majority of qualified voters did not vote for the appropriation. And the case now goes to court.

Concord Register.

Mr. D. M. Barringer, of Mt. Pleasant, gathered from one vine this fall, ten pumpkins that weighed, together, four hundred and eighteen pounds. How is that for prolific.

Mr. Henry W. Fisher brought an ear of corn to us on Tuesday that contained twenty-four rows, and we counted fifty grains to the row, making about twelve hundred grains on the year.

When a remedy has stood the test of more than thirty years trial and to-day is more largely used than ever, its worth is evidently unquestioned. Such is the record of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup.

A NEW YORK FEUD.

BROTHERS QUARREL 'ND HUSBAND AND WIFE SEPARATED.

Litigation that Reveals a Queer State of things in the Elliott Family--- Questions Answered.

ELMIRA, Oct. 23.—Henry Elliott, aged fifty-five, and his brother Warren, aged forty-five, live on adjoining farms in Catlin, Chemung county. Nine years ago Warren bought a span of horses from his brother. He said that he had been cheated in the purchase, and a quarrel was had between the brothers. Shortly afterward a barn belonging to Henry was destroyed by fire. He charged his brother Warren with burning the barn. Some months afterward Warren's barn was burned. He charged Henry with firing it. In 1874 Henry's house was burned. Warren expressed his belief that Henry had burned the house himself to recover the insurance he had placed on it. The quarrel between the brothers was taken up by their parents. The mother took sides with Warren. The father espoused Henry's cause. The old couple separated. Mrs. Elliott went to Warren's house for a home; old Mr. Elliott became a member of Henry's family. The parents were both octogenarians, and had been married nearly sixty years.

In the fall of 1876 another barn belonging to Warren Elliott was burned. As before he claimed that Henry set it on fire. On the night of election, 1876. Henry's barn was burned down. He charged the burning to his brother Warren. The latter made the counter charge that Henry had himself burned the barn to obtain the insurance. Warren paid the insurance adjuster $25 to order an investigation. An investigation was held, but no evidence implicating any one in the burning was elicited. Shortly after the last named fire old Mr. Elliott died.

On Henry Elliott's farm was a building known as "the barrack." It was used for storing grain. Henry had an insurance on it of $600. Two years ago he leased the building to Henry Van Gelder, who stored a large quantity of corn in it. It was soon afterward burned down. Charges and counter charges of burning were made by the brothers as before. A few weeks ago Van Gelder brought a suit against Henry Elliott to recover the value of the corn, charging that the fire which destroyed it was caused by Henry Elliott to receive $600 insurance. On the trial of the case before Justice Baldwin, in this city, Henry Elliott swore that he got only $100 for the loss of the building from the insurance company. Van Gelder lost the suit but has appealed it.

John H. Minturn, aged 30 years, is a nephew of Henry and Warren Elliott. He was left an orphan at an early age, and has lived with one or the other of his uncles ever since. His home was with Henry Elliott until three or four years ago. He then left and has lived with his uncle Warren ever since. At the time he left Henry's it was generally understood that there had been a quarrel between Henry and Minturn in regard to wages. Minturn claimed that he held Henry Elliott's note for wages due. The uncle declared that Minturn had forged the note, and threatened to send the nephew to the penitentiary if he brought suit on the note.

Alexander Wade is a near neighbor of Henry Elliott's. At about 9:30 o'clock on the evening of Sept. 12th last Willie Elliott, a son of Henry Elliott, came running into Wade's house and announced that his father had been shot. Mr. Wade and his wife hurried to Elliott's. They found him lying on the ground in front of his gate. He was carried into the house. There were two wounds in the upper part of his right arm, below the elbow, and one in his left side, all apparently made with bullets. It was thought at first that Elliott was fatally hurt, but the wounds proved to be not serious. He said that he knew who shot him, but refused to give their names. The next day warrants were issued for the arrest of Warren Elliott and John H. Minturn on a charge of attempt at murder. They were held to bail and were indicted.

Since the indictment, friends of Warren Elliott and Minturn procured from the insurance company in which the burned barrack building was insured a receipt for $600, signed by Henry Elliott, and a draft for that amount, indorsed by him. In the corn suit he swore that he got only $100 and never signed a receipt for $600. Henry Elliott was arrested week before last on a charge of perjury, and was indicted by the same grand jury that indicted Warren Elliott and John H. Minturn for his attempted assassination.

The County Court convened in this city last Monday, Judge Seymour Dexter on the bench. Minturn was arraigned for trial on Monday, separate trials being chosen by the prisoners.

"I had been at a neighbor's house on the night of the 12th of September," said Henry Elliott from the witness stand. "As I was entering my gate on returning, a man raised up on each side of me from behind the bushes. I recognized my nephew, John Minturn, and my brother Warren. They each drew a pistol, John shot me in the arm, and Warren shot me in the side. As I fell to the ground Minturn put his pistol to my head. "Shoot the d— old —," said Warren. "You'll never cheat another man out of his wages." said my nephew. He pulled the trigger and the cap snapped. My cries had alarmed my family, and my brother ran off through the garden and jumped over a stone wall. Minturn ran up the road. My brother has said since the lawsuit with Van Gelder that he would fix me yet."

Mrs. Henry Elliott, Janey Elliott, Willie Elliott, and another member of the family swore that they saw and recognized both Warren Elliott and John Minturn.

The theory of the defense was that Henry Elliott had himself inflicted the wounds in his arm and side (not with a pistol, but by stabbing), with the intention of creating the belief that he was shot by his brother and nephew, whom he hoped to send to State prison. The proving of an alibi was depended upon to clear the prisoners. To establish the alibi the defense called Jennie Kent, old Mrs. Elliott, and other members of Warren Elliott's family.

Mrs. Kent is a good-looking young woman of most modest demeanor. Her story was that she was at Warren Elliott's house on the night of the alleged shooting, and that both Warren Elliott and John Minturn were in the house until she went away, which was about 10 o'clock.

"Mrs. Kent," said District Attorney Fassett on cross-examination, "are you married?"

The witness hesitated, and finally answered. "No, sir, I am not."

"Are you living with Alfred Kent as his wife?"

"Yes, sir."

"Don't you know that Alfred Kent has a wife living?"

"Yes, sir."

"Alfred Kent is a tenant of Warren Elliott's, isn't he?"

"Yes, sir."

"Is Alfred Kent in any way related to Warren Elliott?"

"Mrs. Warren Elliott is Alfred Kent's sister."

Old Mrs. Elliott swore that she was up until a late hour in the night of the 12th of September, and that her son and grandson were not out of the house. Mrs. Elliott is 83 years old, nearly blind, and had to be carried on the witness stand, being a cripple. On cross-examination, she admitted that she had a strong feeling against her son Henry.

"What remark did you make when you heard that Henry was shot?" asked Mr. Fasset of the old lady.

"I said I didn't believe he was shot with a pistol by Warren, but if he was it was a pity it hadn't killed him!"

A number of witnesses were sworn as to threats Warren Elliott and Minturn had made against Henry previous to the shooting. Drs. Bush and Gregg swore that Henry Elliott's wounds were not made with bullets, but were stabs. The trial lasted until day before yesterday, when the jury went out. They returned in the afternoon with a verdict of "not guilty." This verdict also settles the case as to Warren Elliott. The perjury case is to be pressed against Henry Elliott, and procee lings are to be begun by Warren Elliott and John Minturn against Henry on charge of conspiracy to send them to prison on a false charge.

BOYS IN THE NAVY.

The Rough Experience of One Who Has Been There.

Cincinnati Enquirer.

To the Editor of the Enquirer: Noticing in your columns of the 11th instant an article headed "Recruits for the Navy," I wish to ask you a few questions in reference to the same:

1. In case a recruit is taken sick while on board a vessel, is it a fact that he is put off at any way landing?

2. Does the applicant have to pay his own car fare from the place of examination to the vessel?

3. Commander Potter says each boy gets $1 per month to spend. The question is, if he is getting $11.50 per month, and the $1 which he gets to spend is deducted from the $11.50, what is done with the remaining $10.50?

4. Mr. Potter also says each recruit must pay for his uniform. Is this true?

READER.

Instead of answering the questions seriatim, we will give the experience of a young man who served a year in the navy, and is lately returned. Thomas J. Ward, of this city, a young man of more than ordinary intelligence enlisted in the navy in Brooklyn, and made a cruise lasting just a year. He is now at home in this city, and noticing that an effort was being made to recruit boys for the service he called at this office last night to give his experience for the benefit of those who contemplate a life on the ocean wave. He says that the United States navy is the last place on earth that a boy should go. "It is simply hell," said Mr. Ward, in the vigorous language of a seaman. 'No man can have any idea of the sort of life it is unless he has been there. The officers have an easy time of it, but the seamen, and particularly the boys, have a dog's life." Ward was on board the ship Alaska, and sailed from New York in June, 1878. As an instance of the fare the sailors had to put up with, he said that the meat which they took with them from New York had been around the world, and was absolutely unfit for use. They ate it or let it alone, as they desired. At Talcahuana, in Chili, where flour is second to none in the world, bread was brought on board which proved to be about half bone dust and in less than a month's time was fairly alive with worms. At Panama, where they laid up for some time, the baker brought them bread that was alive with bugs. The men complained of it to the proper office, who said: "Well, by G—d, if you don't like it, go back to the hard bread." So the men had to go back to the bone dust of Chili or pay about three price to a "bumboat" man for bread that was fit to eat, which they did as long as they could raise the cash to pay for it. Warm says he did not eat one pound of government bread from the time he left Callao, Peru, until he arrived at Pannama, having bought a sack of flour, and had the ward room cook bake it for him The officers had bread of their own. Ward was ship's printer, and has an honorable discharge, on which the words "Conduct Good" appear, signed by Secretary Thompson. It reached him at Mazatlan, Mexico, in February last. It was two weeks' sail from there to San Francisco. "Rather than remain on board the vessel until they reached San Francisco," said Ward, "I left immediately and paid thirty dollars in gold for another passage to California. I would have done this rather than remained on board another day or another hour. The Alaska was no worse than any other ship. In some respects it was much better." Mr. Ward painted a black picture of the morals on shipboard, and said it would ruin any boy that ever lived. In regard to the boys having to pay for their uniform. Mr. Ward said they had not only to pay for their uniform, but to pay two prices for it. When a person enlists in the navy he has to draw about $60 worth of clothing, and he will have to pay for all this before he can go ashore. They also have to pay their fare to the place of embarkation. One of the ship's officers had authority to act as a kind of sutler, and at different points he laid in a stock of provisions and luxuries, for which he charged the crew about two prices. They are obliged to buy these things or go hungry, and about all their wages go into this man's coffers. Ward strongly advises all boys to stay out the navy, and asserts that if he had to choose between going to the navy and the State's prison he would take the latter.

A Wise Deacon.

"Deacon Wilder, I want you to tell me how you kept yourself and family well the past season, when all the rest of us have been sick so much, and have had the doctors visiting us so often."

"Bro. Taylor, the answer is very easy. I used Hop Bitters in time; kept my family well and saved the doctor bills. Three dollars' worth of it kept us well and able to work all the time. I'll warrant it has cost you and the neighbors one to two hundred dollars apiece to keep sick the same time."

"Deacon, I'll use your medicine hereafter."

TROUBLE IN THE CAMP.

THE TWO Ss---SHERIDAN AND SCHURZ.

A True Report Expected, but the People Fooled--Capture of the Murderers Dim.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—There has been much comment over the remark of Lieut. Gen. Sheridan, in his recent dispatch here, concerning the Ute difficulties, to the effect that the troops were "tied up" and "sold out." It is of course a matter of common notoriety that there has for a long time been bad blood between Secretary Schurz and Gen. Sheridan, and the language was no doubt intended, as generally construed, to reflect upon Mr. Schurz. When the dispatch came here it was said by the Interior Department officials that General Sherman was really the one reflected upon, as the order to stop the pursuit of the hostile Utes emanated from his office, and would have been issued had he not concurred in the policy of the Interior Department. As is shown by the dispatch of the Governor of Colorado to Secretary Schurz, public sentiment there is also averse to the discontinuance of the pursuit, notwithstanding, as Mr. Schurz so forcibly points out in his reply, that the policy determined upon "may not only save the lives of the helpless women and children, but be the means of averting an exhaustive and expensive Indian war. But the results yet to come only can prove the wisdom of the policy which has been adopted. That Lieut. Gen. Sheridan doubts it, and is indifferent as to who he reflects upon, is evidenced by intelligence which comes from Chicago today, that when he used the terms that the troops had been tied up and sold out he meant exactly what he said. The Indian situation was the engrossing topic of discussion before the cabinet to-day. All the information in possession of both the War and Interior Departments was submitted by Gen. Sherman and Secretary Schurz. After a full interchange of views it was concluded to adhere to the policy which had been adopted, namely, to wait the result of Ouray's efforts to deliver up the prisoners held by the Indians, and the guilty Indians themselves, the military authorities in the meantime to take every possible precautionary measure, and to so dispose the troops that prompt and effective offensive operations may be at once resumed if Ouray fails to redeem his promises in a reasonable time. A report from Gen. Adams, the special agent dispatched by Secretary Schurz to the Ute country, is expected in a short time, and the character of this report will determine future action. The President and the members of the cabinet had no difference, as the view that all proper effort consistent with the circumstances should be put forth to secure the apprehension and punishment of the murderers without further expenditure of lives or money. The advices received by the War Department tend to confirm to some extent the opinion expressed by Gen. Pitkin that Ouray will be powerless to fulfill his promises, and that serious hostilities cannot be avoided. This, however, does not lessen the duty of the government to make the attempt. Less importance was attached in the cabinet meeting to-day to the statements of Gov. Pitkin than would have been the case was it dot known that he is entirely in accord with the public sentiment of Colorado, which clamors for possession of the entire Ute country.

AN IMPORTANT MISSION.

HON. W. O. Tuggle Constituted Chief Agent of the Muscogee Nation.

Atlanta Constitution.

W. O. Tuggle has returned from the Indian territory, where he went in August last.

On the 13th of October the National Council of the Muscogee nation constituted and appointed him agent of the Muscogee nation, with full power to prosecute, collect, or adjust all claims of the said nation, and as such agent he was duly commissioned by Ward Coachman, principal chief. The seal of the nation is attached, with the words, "Great Seal of the Muscogee Nation," thereon, and a picture of a plow and sheaf of wheat.

Colonel Tuggle was also made the representative of the Creek orphan claim, which resulted from the treaty of 1832. In this treaty the United States reserved twenty sections of land in Alabama for the Creek orphans which land was sold by the Government and a large balance still remains due said orphans. The Assistant Attorney General of the United States and the Department of the Interior have rendered opinions favorable to the payment of said trust fund to the Creek orphans, and Congress ought to appropriate the requisite amount to cancel such a debt, so long delayed.

The government of the United States has assumed to be the guardian of the Indians, and it should certainly deal fairly with them in all business transactions.

The Creeks left Georgia under the treaty of 1825, and Alabama under the treaty of 1832 and those of a later date, and it would seem peculiarly appropriate for members of Congress from Georgia and Alabama to see to it that the trust funds of the Creek orphans are distributed to the beneficiaries without further delay and in accordance with treaty stipulations.

The civilized tribes are trying to walk the white man's road. The white man should put no stumbling-blocks in the way.

In the selection of Colonel Tuggle as their agent to collect these claims, the parties interested have displayed wisdom. He is a man of untiring energy, and his success in the cause of the State of Georgia, shows clearly that he can accomplish more than any one else has in looking up the proofs, and pushing his claims to a final settlement. In other words Colonel Tuggle is an agent that gets the money for his principal, and this is not all, he always pays over to his principal the money he collects, which is an important item to consider these times.

We will make a prediction—Colonel Tuggle will get the money on these claims, or they will never be heard of again. They have been quietly sleeping for nearly a half a century, but they have an agent after them now that will shake the coils out of them, or run them into the centennial notch.

Lenoir Topic.

Last Monday there were nineteen persons baptised by immersion at King's Creek Baptist church in this county. Revs. J. B. Powell and Edmund Tilley have been conducting the services.

A few days since Mr. A. A. Sudderth exhibited at this office a snake with two feet. The reptile was sent to Commissioner Spencer F. Baird, Washington City, who writes: The specimen sent is the well-known hog-nosed viper (heterodon platyrhinus). It is perfectly harmless, although somewhat threatening in its general aspect.

DAILY NEWS

SUNDAY, OCTOBER 26, 1879.

GEO. C. JORDAN, Editor and Prop'r.

THE whisky frauds in this State are boginningto attract attention. The dodge that the "moonshiners" are furnishing all the illicit whisky is of no further avail.

THE New York Star keeps up its hopeless battle against the right. With a few more such steadfast friends Mr. Kelly might safely count his vote as 7,000!

BY reference to our news columns it will be seen that Mr. Hanlan is anxious for a square race. At the same time he has no right to impute dishonesty to Mr. Courtney. The Toronto Hanlan Club, an association of gamblers, is clearly at the bottom of the fiasco. They were the ones that had the whole race at stake. Mr. Courtney has been unfortunate, but that does not imply dishonesty. Let Mr. Hanlan's friends and Mr. Brister, Courtney's backer, take a back seat, and the race will be a square one.

THE Postmaster General has replied to Senator Anthony's letter, published last Sunday, stating that the order declaring matter unmailable when not addressed to postoffices is now better understood and is working well. No complaints of its operation have been received from any part of the country, save New England. Senator Anthony's suggestion in regard to changing names of postoffices is being acted upon where it appears that changes are necessary, and in order to prevent further confusion the appointment office has been directed that all cases for the establishment or change of names of postoffices be referred to the general superintendent of railway mail service for report as to whether the name proposed is liable to be confounded with that of any other postoffice.

THE Republican nominee for Governor of Minnesota is meeting with bitter opposition within his own party. He was nominated for a third time, in spite of the protest of a large proportion of the party, who were opposed to overriding the old custom. This is being used effectively against him, and in addition it has been proven that during the whole of his two terms (four years) he drew from the State Treasury $800 per year allowed the Governor house rent, while in fact he was living in his own residence in Minneapolis and did not pay a dollar in rent. The Stillwater Messenger, an influential Republican paper, vigorously opposes the re-election of Gov. Pillsbury, and the disaffection within the party may defeat him, especially as the Democrats have nominated an excellent man upon a sound currency platform.

WE would suggest in view of the pitiful tale of Carolina's laxity of morals as regards illicit distillation told by Mr. Graham in the columns of the New York Tribune that this same gentleman be sent to Gaston county to depict a licensed distillery. The meal room unlocked and a mill two hundred yards away; four or five barrels of unstamped liquor stowed away in the brush adjoining; a government lock with no seal on, the keys in the possession of the Government store-keeper calmly smoking his pipe in a tavern two miles away; false keys in the possession of the distiller; five or six tubs supposed to be "dry" but in reality the opposite; the book-keeper in his office trying to make the sales of 4,000 gallons extra tally with the amount of stamps used. There would be some fun as well as a large amount of truth in a delineation of this sort.

POLITICAL NOTES.

Hon. Charles Foster declares positively that he will not be a candidate for United States Senator from Ohio.

The Greenback vote in Ohio last week was less than ten thousand, against eighty-eight thousand last year.

General Arthur, a leading New York Republican politican, expresses a belief that Cornell will run nearly one hundred thousand votes ahead of Robinson, and that the rest of the ticket will have a majority of twenty or thirty thousand. He thinks that the Democrats have given up all hope of electing Robinson, and will devote themselves mainly to endeavoring to elect Mr. Potter and the rest of their ticket.

An Act of Justice.

Durham Recorder.

The Hall up stairs was devoted to the display of feminine handwork, embroidery, needle work, painting, etc. The display here was fine and large, but we only notice one item from its rarity. We were much struck with the exceeding richness and beauty of several sets of regalia, Masonic, Good Templars, Friends of Temperance, etc., the work of Mrs. M. E. Whitaker, the wife of R. H. Whitaker of Raleigh. They equaled anything of Northern work we ever saw in elegance of workmanship and wealth of ornament, while they are made at a cost of not more than half of what they cost abroad. They had been made to order, but were exhibited by request, and as Mrs. Whitaker is the only one in the State who does such work, we think it an act of justice to call attention to the fact.

Abductor Caught and Committed.

Charlotte Observer.

The negro, Bob Johnston, who, about three weeks ago, abducted the little thirteen year old daughter of Mr, Isaac Snell, from her father's house in Providence township, was arrested. Thursday, at Smith's Turnout, on the Charlotte, Columbia & Augusta railroad, in South Carolina. It is shocking to relate that he and the child were married last Tuesday night by a minister named Boyd, and that when come up with they were living together as man and wife. Johnston and the child were brought to Pineville, in this county, yesterday, and the former had a trial before Justice J. T. Downs, who ordered him to jail in Charlotte, the negro being unable to give bond for his appearance. The child was taken charge of by her father and carried home. She is represented as weaked minded and thus more susceptible to undue influence. Johnston is a stout, black negro, twenty five years of age.

February Twenty-eight and Twenty-nine One Day.

St, Louis Times-Journal.

The Supreme Court of Indiana has affirmed a principle in respect to the computation of time which is likely to prove of serious trouble to bankers and others. It is that the twenty-ninth day of February and twenty-eighth day of February are to be computed as one day. The question was suggested by the fact that there ten days previous service of process is necessary for a judgment. And the cause having been begun in the last leap year, 1876, the process was not served in time, if the twenty-eighth and twenty-ninth days of February were to be computed as one day. And the court held that they must be so counted. The pith of the decision is in these words: "It must be regarded as settled in this State that the twenty-eighth and twenty-ninth days of February in every bissextile year must be computed and considered in law as one day. It has been held by this court that the English statute, 21 Henry III, is in force in this State. This statute, speaking of the twenty-ninth day of February in leap year provides: Computitur dies ille et dies proxime precedens pro unico die. (And that day, as well as the next preceding, shall be computed as as one day.) This English statute is recognized as a part of the law governing this State. The service of the summons was sufficient in law to justify either the default entered or the judgment rendered."

Violations of Revenue Laws.

Carthage Index.

During the past twelve months there has been an increase in the number of violations in this department of the government. Hundreds of illicit distilleries have been destroyed in the western counties of the State, many wagons loaded with unstamped tobacco have been seized, factories have been closed up and still the illegal traffic goes on with as much success as ever; and men seem determined to never regard the laws of the government under which they live. All this is not surprising when we come to review the manner in which the laws are attempted to be enforced, and the agents of the government who undertake to enforce them.

For instance, one officer will approach a neighborhood and send word ahead to the moonshiners "Take in your fodder, there's a storm on hand," while another will pick up the most extensive blockader he can find, allow him to run, derive profits with him, while he carries him around among his neighbors to assist him in cutting up their stills. Such execution as this is decidedly worse than no execution, and only tends to stir up strife and increase the illicit work. The law must be enforced in good faith, with equal justice to all, and the penalties of the law inflicted upon offenders. When did you ever know of an illicit distiller or tobacco peddler being punished in our so-called Federal Courts; why they never think of asking more than that the offender should pay the cost of his case. Such a stupendous humbug should be abolished, the people relieved of the tax, judges, officers, and deputies, sent to the cornfield where they belong, and there would be fewer distilleries and less drunkenness in the land in five years than has been in a decade.

Herat and Cabul.

New York Times.

General Roberts has succeded so far, but his success although rapid and brilliant, bears out the saying of Frederick the Great: "Every victory I gain only shows me how many more must be won ere I can be safe." Cabul is taken, the treacherous Ameer virtually a prisoner, the blood-stained citadel in course of demolition, the enemy's stores and artillery captured. But with all this, the Afghan problem is as far from a satisfactory solution as ever. No lasting peace seems possible without a permanent occupation of the whole country; and this is the very point which cannot and will not be conceded by Russia.

The latter, after long and not unsuccessful endeavors to mislead England into giving to Cabul the importance really due to Herat, has at length spoken out. She has declared her willingness to permit the destruction of Cabul, not the annexation of Afghanistan, and has at the same time demanded an assurance "that England will not occupy Herat or the Badakhshan Plateau—a sufficient proof, were any required, of the relative importance of the two cities. Granting that the Merv detachment is really available for a dash upon Herat, instead of falling back to the Caspian, as recently reported, Russia's double game has been well played. While diverting her rival's energies to to a secondary object, she has now pushed straight toward her own real goal; and should she succeed in reaching it first, and enlisting the support of its turbulent and warlike population, it may be no easy matter to dislodge her.

The superiority of Herat to the rival city is too obvious to need demonstration. Cabul, valuable only as the nominal capital of Afghanistan, which has really no capital at all, is easily assailable from the northwest, while communicating with India by a series of gloomy and perilous gorges, utterly impassable after a heavy fall of snow. Herat, on the other hand, stands on a rocky plateau 2,500 feet above the sea, and is surrounded by walls which, though now ruinous, have many a time defied the assaults of an enemy before whom the whole remaining country had fallen. Its central position, 360 miles west of Cabul and 190 miles east of Meshid, enables it to command at once the eastern entrance of Persia and the western approach to Afghanistan. It is the meeting point of four great high roads, and the recognized mart of the wares of India, China, and Afghanistan on one side and those of Persia, Turkey and Russia on the other. It holds the direct route to Kandahar (352 miles distant), the natural and formerly the actual Afghan metropolis. In all ages Herat has been the chosen basis of an advance upon India from the north, and the first point aimed at alike by native insurgents and foreign invaders. Such a prize is certainly worth striking for, and there can be no doubt that, were Russia to yield to England, in exchange for it, not merely Kandahar and Cabul, but all the rest of Afghanistan likewise, the bargain would still be greatly in her favor.

Up to Tricks.

A humped-shouldered old man, followed by a dog which seemed to have fasted for a year past, entered a Woodward avenue butcher shop the other day, and the man made some inquiries about the price of smoked hams. The butcher saw the dog, of course, and who ever saw a butcher who didn't want to know all about a dog?

"Is that a good coon dog?" asked the butcher, as he patted the shy canine on the head.

"Oh, no—he's a trick dog," answered the owner.

"Is, eh? What tricks can he do?"

"Oh, a dozen or two. He has one very peculiar trick, though. Would you like to see him do it?"

"I would that. What is it?"

The man directed the butcher to put a pound of nice beefsteak on a sheet of clean brown paper and place the whole on the doorstep. He then snid to his dog, which had watched matters very keenly:

"Now, Cato, I am about to call upon you to perform a trick. You have never gone back on me yet, and I have perfect confidence in you now. Cato, do you see that meat?"

Cato saw it. He walked over to it, seized it in his mouth, and as he went up the street it was hard to tell dog from dust.

"Aum, yes," muttered the butcher; "do you call that a trick?"

"I do," confidently replied the man.

"Well, it's a blasted mean one!"

"Just so—just so," said the man. "You couldn't expect such a looking dog rs that to be around playing tricks on a guiter or a jewsharp, could you! I'll see you later about the hams."—Detroit Free Press.

A Fallen Temperance Apostle.

ERIE Oct. 23.—Colonel Hay, the celebrated temperance preacher, who arrived here to-day to hold a temperance revival, met Nelson J. Lee, a former temperance gladiator, who a short time ago electrified a thousand with his eloquence. Lee is a stranger here, has been in Erie five months, has abjured temperance and now drinks beer in his own saloon. His portrait appeared in the Police Gazette a few days ago labeled as a fraud. Lee acknowledged that oe was once a temperance apostle, but attributes his fall from grace to the uncharitable conduct of co-workers. The Colonel and temperance people visited Lee in his saloon for the purpose of winning him back. He declined respectfully, but offered to "set 'em up."

YELLOW TOBACCO.

A Description of its Growth and the Manner of Treatment.

(Concluded.)

WORMING AND SUCKERING.

Usually the worms begin to be troublesome as soon as the plants are large enough to top, but they sometimes begin to eat the leaves soon after planting. The crop has to be gone over once or twice a week to keep them off.

Soon after the topping begins suckers will commence putting out. They should not be allowed to grow over three or four inches in length before being pulled off.

The operations of warming and suckering both go on at the same time and are continued from week to week till the crop is ready for cutting. "Eternal vigilance" should be the planters' motto—not as the price of liberty—but as absolutely necessary to secure a good crop with whole leaves; the overgrowth of suckers making the leaf light and the worms making them ragged.

CURING BARNS.

These are built of logs. The most favorite size is eighteen feet square. The tier poles on which to place the tobacco sticks are put in, starting seven or eight logs from the ground, at intervals of 3 logs and about four rooms in the building, which is made as near air-tight as possible by daubing with mud mortar. An opening is left at the top all the way across and about 10 or 12 inches wide. This is for ventilation, and is arranged with a broad plank, to be closed or kept open as may be necessary, during the process of curing.

THE FLUES.

The curing apparatus placed in the barns are called flues and are built in so many different ways that a detailed description would here be tedious and unprofitable.

Heated air is what is needed to cure tobacco, and the planter must arrange to secure that in such manner as will be safest and most convenient to himself.

There are now numerous manufactures of flue-curing apparatus, costing $10 to $15 to the brrn, and from them full directions for setting up can be obtained.

CUTTING AND FILLING THE BARNS.

From the 15th to the 20th of August the cutting and housing should begin. Each barn must be filled with tobacco, as near as possible of uniform size, color and thickness of leaf. To do this it will be necessary to employ hands of judgment and experience to select and cut the plants. If they are very large, six will till a stick; if medium size, seven or eight, and when small as many as ten or twelve are put on. As fast as cut the tobacco must be loaded into wagons and carried immediately to the barns in which it is hung, from six to ten inches apart on the tier poles and the plants well regulated upon the sticks.

CURING.

Now begins the most difficult part of the whole management, and nothing but a nice judgment and the most untiring watchfulness can secure success.

Every barn of tobacco will differ in character, being larger or small, coarser or finer, greener or yellower, and numerous other conditions requiring a variation of process. It is agreed among the best curers that no specific directions can be laid down but to aid the novice, an example is given: Start fires and go up to 90° or 100° in five to eight hours and stand at that temperature from twenty-four to thirty hours, or until the botton leaves of the plant—lugs—are perfectly yellow and require more heat to keep them from "sponging" or turning red. Now go to one hundred and ten, in five or six hours and stand till the tips become as yellow as desired; then go up 5° every two or three hours till one hundred and thirty is reached and stand till the leaf is cured—from eighteen to twenty hours, then go up from 2° to 4° an hour hour till one hundred and eighty is reached and stand three to five hours; then drop to one hundred and sixty and stand till the stalk is dry. Whole time about ninety-six hours.

(The vent at the top is kept open till the leaf is dry and then closed to confine all the heat upon the stalk.) In standing at 110 the lugs will dry while the other leaves will continue to yellow and thus secure uniformity of color to the whole plant.

Curing is an evaporative process. The heated air ascends through the tobacco, absorbing moisture from the plants and, if not allowed to escape through the vent at the top, will condense upon the leaves and produce what is called sweating, and spoil the cure.

When a barn is finished it will be perfectly dry, and it can be brought into condition for handling by the following process of

ORDERING.

Cover the flues thickly with wet straw and keep it constantly and thoroughly saturated with water. Raise the temperature to about ninety degrees. This will cause the vapor to ascend, and only two or three hours will be required to soften the tobacco sufficiently to bundle and remove to a

STORING HOUSE.

This should be a closely boarded and well covered frame house, with a close plank floor under which the air can circulate freely. A great many planters, however, pack it away in log barns on planks laid upon the lower tiers, while others store it in the upper rooms of their dwellings.

For safe keeping the most approved plan is to double or treble the quantity on the sticks by re-hanging, and lay it down in square coops with the butts of the stalk outward. In this way the leaf will not be affected by the constant changes of temperature during winter and spring, but will retain its color and improve in flavor.

STRIPPING.

This is done in damp weather, when the leaf becomes soft enough to handle and tie in bundles. These are pulled from the stalk by skilled hands, separated according to quality into seven or eight grades, and classed as sand lugs, smooth lugs, first, second, third and fourth grades of leaf, bright and dark tips. All the grades are kept separate and hung upon sticks for convenience in handling. It is now laid down in "coops" and weighted so as to be kept close. Before carrying to market, if it be found too dry it can be hung up in the barn during damp weather and allowed to come in the proper condition. The stems should bend without breaking two-thirds their length in order to show and handle well and be safe for putting in packages for shipping. In this condition it is placed upon the warehouse floors when it is offered for sale. The average price of well cured yellow tobacco is about fifty cents per pound, while some of the fancy grades, in small lots, sell as high as two and three dollars per pound.

A large number of our planters realize from four to six hundred dollars per acre on their crops. There are men in Granville who, ten years ago, were renters, are now worth twenty and thirty thousand dollars. New and neat dwellings are seen on every hand, as well as new outbuildings and inclosures.

A prominent business man and one of the best informed writers in the State of Virginia says: The trade in cigarettes, produced from this tobacco, is increasing with enormous rapidity. Houses in Richmond have had, the past year, to double their capacity. While North Carolina is rich in gold mines, I am persuaded that her yellow tobacco is worth more than all.

Little more than eight years ago the flue curing process was hardly known even in Granville county.

Now the yellow leaf is successfully cultivated and cured in many other counties of the State, as well as along the border in Virginia.

Twenty years ago North Carolina tobacco was unknown, while now we lead the world in this golden industry.

The fame of Granville county—the home of yellow tobacco—has gone out to every quarter of the habitable globe, and at no distant day our golden product will become a source of agricultural and manufacturing wealth hitherto unsurpassed and perhaps without a paralell in the history of the world.

Sir Walter Raleigh, the founder of our State first introduced the native North Carolina smoker into England, and it is peculiarly appropriate that we should send the golden weed to every quarter of the globe.

While North Carolina possesses all the elements of a great commonwealth, she yet lacks industrial developements and commercial unity, to make her a great State.

May it not be that her yellow tobacco of the center is yet to form the goldan chain of commerce that will develop and unify the sections and make us one grand, and great North Carolina.

LOCAL BRIEFS.

—Church day.

—Fine weather.

—Regular services at Christ church to-day.

—"Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy."

—News items were hardly ev- ah, seldom ever scarcer than now.

—All the churches will be open today. and the seats are all free.

— Col. Askew's paper mills at the Falls of Neuse have resumed operation.

—The Western Express train was two hours and a half behind time yesterday afternoon.

—The Auditor's annual report was completed and placed in the hands of the printer yesterday.

—The Punch and Judy show with a big base drum was the leading "boom" of yesterday.

—Justice Barbee yesterday bound a party over to court for bastardy. The only criminal case on the docket.

—Justice Watts tried a trivial case yesterday, which attracted quite a crowd of interested darkey spectators.

—Regular monthly meeting of William G. Hill Lodge. No. 218, F. & A. M. will be held to-morrow evening at 7:30 o'clock.

—Professor Fairchild was yesterday engaged in moving his green house plants into the new green house recently built by him on Nash square.

—Nothing at the mayor's court yesterday. His Honor had gone to the country, but there were no offenders to require his attention had he been present.

—No dead letters. People are becoming more particular about dropping unstamped letters in the postoffice, if they expect them to ever reach their destination.

—Rev. J. K. Howell occupies the pulpit at the Swain street Baptist church at the morning service. The pastor Rev. W. C. Nowelly preaches at night.

—Remember the pound party Tuesday night, to be held in the store on Fayetteville street recently occupied by Mr. W. B. Hutchings as a saddlery. New features for such entertainments will be introduced, and everyone attending may expect to have a splendid time indeed.

"Don't Know Half Their Value."

"They cured me of Ague, Biliousness and Kidney Complaint, as recommended. I had a half bottle left which I used for my two little girls, who the doctors and neighbors said could not be cured. I would have lost both of them onenight if I had not given them Hop Bitters. They did them so much good I continued their use until they were cured. That is why I say you do not know half the value of Hop Bitters, and do not recommend them high enough."—B., Rochester, N. Y. See other column.

Why Will You

Allow a cold to advance in your system and thus encourage more serious maladies, such as Pneumonia, Hemorrhages and Lung troubles when an immediate relief can be so readily attained. Boschee's German Syrup has gained the largest sale in the world for the cure of Cough, Colds and the severest Lung Diseases. It is Dr. Boschee's famous German prescription, ane is prepared with the greatest care, and no fear need be entertained in administering it to the youngest child, as per directions. The sale of this medicine is unprecedented. Since first introduced there has been a constant increasing demand rnd without a single report of a failure to do its work in any case. Ask your Druggist as to the truth of these remarks. Large size 75 cents. Try it and be convinced.

Prescription Free

For the speedy cure of seminal weakness, losss of manhood, and all disorders brought on by indiscretion or excess. Any druggist has the ingredients. Address Davidson & Co., 78 Nassau street, New York. *

FRANKLIN.

LOUISBURG, Oct. 23.—The recent rains have proved a great blessing to water gins and mills most of them throughout the county have been standing still for some time, for the want of sufficient water to run them. This I suppose is one reason why the market here has been so scantily supplied. The buyers here are paying the highest market price. Everyone speaks of the superior quality of the cotton in this section this season. The growers certainly cannot complain of the season they have had for saving it. The corn crop will come in some better than was at first expected. The quality of the fodder saved is superior.

The commercial traders are beginning to come in and the managers of the several hack lines are happy, also the hotel keepers.

Trade continues to improve.

Another marriage on yesterday morning, Mr. Reid Clifton and Miss Helen Singleton. The couple left for their home near Rolesville. I hear of several more weddings to come off soon.

The criminal docket for next week is of little importance. The civil docket is quite large and some are important cases.

FORSYTHE.

WINSTON, Oct. 24.—We have had several days of cold, rainy weather. It is now fair and blowing sharply, foreboding colder weather.

Trade is a little dull this week, comparatively speaking.

Building operations have been somewhat retarded by the bad weather. When all the buildings now in course of erection, and those soon to be begun are completed, our city will be greatly improved in appearance, as well as in value of real estate.

Mr. R. D. Johnson, our genial and energetic merchant tailor, purchaser of the much desired vacant lot of the Norwood property, has let a contract to erect a fine store building in which to conduct his growing business on a larger scale.

We expect that Mr. J. C. Buxton, who purchased so many of the other vacant lots, will erect on them fine buildings, worthy the man and locations. Mr. Buxton has the means and the business capacity to do this rightly, and we hope he will do so.

The St. Paul's Episcople Church is receiving the finishing touches of the painter, and will be quite an ornament to the town and an honor to the members who erected it. It is very stylish, tasty and handsome, Rev. Mr. Bynum, the young and talented pastor, has located here and will doubtless soon gather up a large congregation. With a delegation of the leading citizens of both our towns has gone to meet the president of the Midland Railroad, we are informed, to confer with him as to the construction of a railroad from Danville to Statesville via Winston and Salem, which will, we are told, be on an air line and give us an outlet both North and South. We think every man in our section will subscribe his "bottom dollar" for this road. It is just what we need, what we ought to have, what we want and what we must have.

Rev. Mr. Wills is conducting a protracted meeting in the Methodist Church with increasing zeal and success.

The work on our new town hall is progressing rapidly and Maj. Brown & Co., propose making it all that could be desired. The Major has the means, the vim and the good sense to put it through successfully.

FRANKLIN.

FRANKLINTON, Oct. 25.—Day before yesterday Colonel C. M. Rogers seized Ben Johnson's horse, buggy and tobacco. Johnson took to the woods. Cause —violation of the internal revenue law. Johnson is a Granville man and a Portuguese.

Officer F. C. Blackley yesterday carried Green Yarboro, colored, a hog thief, to the Franklin boarding house.

IREDELL.

COOL SPRING, Oct. 21.—There was a heavy rain on the 19th inst. The South Yadkin rose high and injured a good deal of corn in the bottoms.

Trade has increased a good deal. Wheat is in demand at $1.25.

The Federal court is in session at Statesville this week. Nothing of importance has been done yet. D.

Talking about the liver, we presume that ill temper is more often caused by a disordered liver than anything else. To insure a cheerful disposition take Rosadalis, the great Southern Remedy, which will remove the prime cause, and restore the mind to its natural equilibrium. *

VEST POCKET CURE
25 DYSPEPSIA 25
CLERGY & DOCTORS TESTE.

Rev. Dr. Manguin, Prof. Univ. of N. C. I concur with Bishop Doggett in his estimate of the Vest Pocket Cure.

Rev. Drs. Jeter, Broaddus, Dickinson, (Bap.) It is indorsed by the direct personal testimony of men of national fame and strictness of speech. It is not too much to say that no medicine ever had such support in its favor as a specific. The word of any one of the eminent divines who underwrite this antidote to dyspepsia has deserved weight. Their united witness joined with the experimental use and approval of the preparation by well-known physicians, removes all doubt. It is beyond question, a wonderful therapeutical agent.—Editors Religious Herald, Va.

Chaplain Randolph Macon College, Va. Many cases of Dyspepsia within my knowledge have been cured by it. Cramps, Colics Headaches and all sorts of pains from indigestion yield promptly to it. The cures of this sort are innumerable.

Rev. R. L. Dabney. LL. D., Col. Va.

It is highly esteemed here by the regular Medical Faculty and the people It is excellent for indigestion and flatulent colic, sedative, soporific, tonic, slightly aperient, without nausea.

Rev. B F. Woodward P. E., Na. Conf. About twelve years I suffered from Dyspepsia. Falling in with this remedy, I gave it a fair trial. After its use I could eat anything with impunity. I am sure I am indebted to this medicine for what of health and physical comfort I have had for the last sixteen years. I have known many since to be relieved by its use.

Rev. Robert W. Watts, A. M., Va. I have used the mixture in my family for years, and have taken it for a Dyspepsia Colic, which threatened my life, and was cured, eating any diet without hurt. I have recommended it to other sufferers with happiest results. It is the best tonic and corrective I ever knew. For prostration from Dyspepsia or Liver Disease it is invaluable.

J. D. Eggleston, M. D., Va. It is a highly valuable remedy, and is more extensively used than any single article in the whole list of medicines, so far as I observed in my practice, for all the complaints in families from indigestion. I use it and recommend it.

Editor Richmond Christian Advocate. This remedy is of tried virtue. I have seen Dyspepsia cured completely by it. It seems to be an antidote to our "National Disease." The ingredients are not kept by the apothecaries, and have been difficult to get.

Price 25 cents per bottle. Sold by all druggists. In Raleigh, by
